SIR JOHN FORBES of Monimusk against MENZIES of Pitfoddels.

No. 103.

In an action pursued to have it found that Menzies ought to bear a proportion of the Ministers' new augmentation, because his teinds, though his charter designed them decimae inclusae, yet were not truly such as have the privilege of exemption from paying any part of Ministers' stipends; because they were known and separate from the stock, in so far as his charter bore a separate reddendo, and duty payable for these teinds, viz. twenty-eight bolls of victual; likeas, de facto, they bore a part of the Ministers' old stipend; "the Lords found they were not the true kind of decimae inclusae, and therefore decerned him to bear a part of the new augmentation."

1678. July 16. EARL of QUEENSBERRY against George Douglas.

A pursuit for teinds. Alleged the acres were of old a vicar's glebe, which by the Canon law paid no teind. Answered, Although they were free of the vicar's possession, yet they cannot plead exemption in a laick's, and the 62d Act, Parl. 5. James 6th, (1578) mentions not vicar's glebes. The Lords sustained the allegeance, unless the pursuer would prove they had paid teind within these forty years. It would not hold in vicar's lands, for they have no such privilege.

JOHN HOPE of Hopetoun against GEORGE Young in Winchburgh.

No. 105. Relief from Ministers' stipend, by what means obtained?

John Hope pursues George Young for the teinds of certain lands, which George bruiked by tack. Alleged, absolvitor, because, by the Earl of Winton's disposition, to the pursuer, of these lands, the defender's tack and prorogation thereof is expressly reserved, bearing a certain duty to be paid by him for feu, teind and silver duty; and so the pursuer can never be heard to crave any more than that duty which is stated in the disposition accepted by him, and by which he bruiks; besides, by the tack, he is to be relieved of Ministers' stipends, which clause would not have been inserted had he not paid the tack-duty for teinds and all; likeas, the defender and his predecessors have been in immemorial possession of these lands for payment of the tack-duty, both for stock and teind, and the teind was never drawn. Answered, Neither his tack nor rental mentions the teinds to be set in tack, and therefore he can never have right to teinds which are not disponed to him; and the mentioning the duty in Hopetoun's disposition can never give him
