AITRINSON against M'BEAN.

No 8.

In a complaint against a messenger for neglecting or delaying to put a caption in execution, the Court found him liable for the debt, as the proper reparation to his employer for the damage occasioned by his neglect of duty.

CHARLES MITCHELL, Supplicant.

In the sale of the estate of Girlsta in Zetland, an act was pronounced for proving the rental and value of the lands, and a commission granted for taking the proof, with letters of diligence directed to messengers at arms as usual, for eiting the witnesses.

The estate under sale, though scarce yielding L. 100 Sterling of yearly rent, lies scattered through the islands of Zetland; and the tenants living at great distances from one another, are in number 250. There is at present but one messenger in Zetland; and as he would have by computation above 300 miles to travel by land and water before compleating his circuit, he declined the execution without being allowed several months, with the sum of L. 40 Sterling for his fee and expenses. This produced an application to the Court of Session at the instance of the creditors, praying an authority to employ Sheriff-officers to execute the diligence, who would perform the same expeditiously and at a very small expense; which, considering the circumstances of the case, was readily-granted.

ROBERT MUNRO against ALEXANDER MACPHERSON, Messenger.

Before advising the merits of this complaint, the scope whereof will be understood from the judgment subjoined, the respondent, present at the bar, acknowledged that the fact set forth in his answers, viz. that he had not demanded the expenses from the complainer and his wife, but that he had received the same, on the solicitation of the debtor, was truly a mistake; for that he had demanded them, being ignorant that his doing so was contrary to aw, having never heard of the Court's proceedings in the 1738, or of the act of sederunt then made. See No 5. p. 8889.

No 9.
Sheriff-officers were authorised by the Court to officiate as messengers in executing diligence against witnesses and havers in a sale.

No for.

No messenger shall exact fees from a person whom he is employed to apprehend upon a caption.
