

Freedom of Information Act 2000 (Section 50)

Decision Notice

Date: 30 November 2009

Public Authority: British Broadcasting Corporation
Address: 2252 White City
201 Wood Lane
London
W12 7TS

Summary

The complainant made an information request to the British Broadcasting Corporation (the "BBC") for information about Radio Solent presenters and producers annotated to show those that are permanent BBC staff and those on contract. He also requested the end dates of those on contracts. The BBC refused to provide the requested information claiming that it was outside the scope of the Freedom of Information Act ("the Act") because it was held for the purposes of journalism, art or literature. The Commissioner is satisfied that the information in question was held for the purpose of journalism, art and literature. Therefore the BBC was not obliged to comply with Parts I to V of the Act.

The Commissioner's Role

1. The Commissioner's duty is to decide whether the BBC has complied with its duties under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (the "Act"). This Notice sets out his decision.

The Request

2. On 9 June 2009 the complainant requested the following information:

"a list of Radio Solent Presenters and Producers annotated to show which of them are permanent BBC Staff and which are on contract. In the case of those on contract, would you please supply the end dates of those contracts."

3. On 11 June 2009 the BBC replied, withholding the requested information:

“Your request falls outside the scope of the Act because the BBC and the other public service broadcasters are covered by the Act only in respect of information held for purposes “other than those of journalism, art or literature” (see Schedule 1, Part VI of the Act). We are not therefore obliged to supply information held for the purposes of creating the BBC’s output or information that supports and is closely associated with these creative activities...”

The Investigation

Scope of the case

4. On 11 June 2009 the complainant contacted the Commissioner to complain about the way his request for information had been handled. The complainant asked the Commissioner to consider the BBC’s refusal to provide the requested information.

Chronology

5. On 2 October 2009, whilst the complaint was awaiting allocation for investigation, the High Court handed down its judgments in relation to two appeals it had heard involving the application of the derogation by the BBC. Both judgments found in favour of the BBC. The Commissioner has applied the findings of the two judgments to the facts of this case.
6. In view of the above and having reviewed the request and the correspondence supplied by the complainant, the Commissioner decided that it was not necessary to contact the BBC for further information or arguments regarding its handling of the request.

Analysis

Substantive Procedural Matters

Jurisdiction

7. Section 3 of the Act states:

“3. – (1) In this Act “public authority” means –
(b).... any body...which –
(i) is listed in Schedule 1.....”

The entry in relation to the BBC at Schedule 1, Part VI reads:

“The British Broadcasting Corporation, in respect of information held for purposes other than those of journalism, art or literature”

Section 7 of the Act states:

“7. – (1) Where a public authority is listed in Schedule 1 only in relation to information of a specified description, nothing in Parts I to V of this Act applies to any other information held by the authority”.

The BBC has argued that the construction of sections 3, 7 and Schedule 1 means that the BBC is not a public authority where it holds the requested information for the purposes of journalism, art or literature. Consequently, the Commissioner would not have jurisdiction to issue a decision notice given the wording of section 50.

8. This issue has been considered by the House of Lords in the case of *Sugar v BBC*¹. By a majority of 3:2, the Lords found in favour of the Appellant, Mr Sugar, in concluding that the Commissioner does have jurisdiction to issue decision notices regardless of whether the information that has been requested is derogated. The Commissioner adopts the reasoning set out by Lord Hope at paragraphs 54 and 55 where he said:

“54. Section 7(1) says that where a public authority is listed in Schedule 1 only in relation to information of a specified description, nothing in Parts I to V of the Act applies to any other information held by the authority. What it does not say is that, in that case, the authority is a hybrid – a “public authority” within the meaning of the Act for some of the information that it holds and not a “public authority” for the rest. The technique which it uses is a different one. Taking the words of the subsection exactly as one finds them, what it says is that nothing in Parts I to V of the Act applies to any other “information” held by “the authority”. This approach indicates that, despite the qualification that appears against its name in Schedule 1, the body is a public authority within the meaning of the Act for all its purposes. That, in effect, is what section 3(1) of the Act provides when it says what “public authority” means “in this Act”. The exception in section 7(1) does not qualify the meaning of “public authority” in section 3(1). It is directed to the information that the authority holds on the assumption that, but for its provisions, Parts I to V would apply because the holder of the information is a public authority.”

55.The question whether or not Parts I to V apply to the information to which the person making the request under section 1(1) seeks access depends on the way the public authority is listed. If its listing is unqualified, Parts I to V apply to all the information that it holds. If it is listed only in relation to information of a specified description, only information that falls within the specified description is subject to the right of access that Part I provides. But it is nevertheless, for all the purposes of the Act, a public authority”.

9. Therefore, the Commissioner has jurisdiction to issue a decision notice on the grounds that the BBC remains a public authority. Where the information is derogated, the Commissioner considers that the BBC has no obligations to comply with Parts I to V in respect of that information.

10. The Commissioner will first determine whether the request is for information held for the purposes of journalism, art or literature and if therefore the BBC is required to comply with Parts I to V in respect of the request.

Derogation

11. The scope of the derogation has been considered by the High Court in the cases of the BBC v Steven Sugar and the Information Commissioner [EW2349]² and the BBC v the Information Commissioner [EW2348].³ In both decisions Mr Justice Irwin stated:

“My conclusion is that the words in the Schedule mean the BBC has no obligation to disclose information which they hold to any significant extent for the purposes of journalism, art or literature, whether or not the information is also held for other purposes. The words do not mean that the information is disclosable if it is held for purposes distinct from journalism, art or literature, whilst it is also held to any significant extent for those purposes. If the information is held for mixed purposes, including to any significant extent the purposes listed in the Schedule or one of them, then the information is not disclosable.” (para 65 EA2349 and para 73 EW2348).

12. The Commissioner interprets the phrase “to any significant extent”, when taken in the context of the judgment as a whole, to mean that where the requested information is held to a more than trivial or insignificant extent for journalistic, artistic or literary purposes the BBC will not be obliged to comply with Parts I to V of the Act. This is the case even if the information is also held for other purposes.
13. For completeness, the Commissioner considers that where information is held for non-journalistic/artistic/literary purposes and is only held to a trivial or insignificant extent for the purposes listed in Schedule 1, then the BBC will be obliged to comply with its obligations under Parts I to V of the Act.
14. Thus, provided there is a relationship between the information and one of the purposes listed in Schedule 1, then the information is derogated. This approach is supported by Mr Justice Irwin’s comments on the relationship between operational information, such as programme costs and budgets, and creative output:

“It seems to me difficult to say that information held for ‘operational’ purposes is not held for the ‘purposes of journalism, art or literature.’” (para 87 EW2348)

² BBC v Steven Sugar & The Information Commissioner [2009] EWHC 2349 (Admin)

³ BBC v The Information Commissioner [2009] EWHC 2348 (Admin)

15. The information relevant to the request need not be journalistic, artistic or literary material itself. As explained above all that needs to be established is whether the requested information is held to any significant extent for one or more of the derogated purposes of art, literature or journalism.
16. The two High Court decisions referred to above related to information falling within the following categories:
 - Salaries of presenters / talent
 - Total staff costs of programmes
 - Programme budgets
 - Programme costs
 - Payments to other production companies for programmes
 - Payments to secure coverage of sporting events and other events
 - Content of programmes / coverage of issues within programmes

In relation to all of the above Mr Justice Irwin found that the information was held for operational purposes related to programme content and therefore to a significant extent for the purposes of journalism, art or literature.

17. The Commissioner recognises that the High Court cases did not specifically consider information related to BBC staff and their contracts. Nevertheless the Commissioner considers the comments made by Mr Justice Irwin regarding the need for a relationship between the requested information and the derogated purposes are relevant and therefore he has considered them here.
18. As indicated above the High Court concluded that information about presenters' salaries was held for operational purposes associated with programme production. Consequently Mr Justice Irwin found that the BBC held the information to a significant extent for the purposes listed in Schedule 1. Radio Solent presenters and producers are involved in creating the BBC's broadcast content. Information about whether individuals in those posts are permanent BBC staff or on contracts is likely to be held for personnel management purposes. However in the Commissioner's view, it is also held to a significant extent for the purposes of art, literature or journalism. The information is operational information held to support and manage the production of Radio Solent programmes. It is likely to inform creative decisions about which presenters and producers are available to work on particular programmes and whether it is necessary to contract other individuals. Furthermore information detailing the nature of the producer or presenters employment (including the length of different contracts) is held because creative decisions have been made to employ those individuals to work on BBC output.
19. In view of the above, the Commissioner has found that the request is for information held to a significant extent for the purpose of journalism, art or literature and that the BBC was not obliged to comply with Parts I to V of the Act.

The Decision

20. The Commissioner's decision is that as the request is for information held to a significant extent for the purposes of journalism, art or literature the BBC was not obliged to comply with Part I to V of the Act in this case.

Steps Required

21. The Commissioner requires no steps to be taken.
